

Editorial

A new issue of Hans Shodh Sudha (HSS) is available. Since its inception, it has been our endeavour to ensure that high standards of writing on the subjects are maintained so that it serves the purposes for which it was launched. It is our conviction that research and ensuing innovation is an integral part of any progressive society and its education system. Our journal Hans Shodh Sudha is paying an important role in carrying forward the work of research in various fields of arts, societal issues and science. We have been successful in our mission which is borne by the fact, that quality and earnest articles are contributed by writers all over the country. Once again it is emphasized that the editorial board of the journal carries sincere and honest analysis of the articles contributed by various authors before their publication to ward against plagiarism.

This issue covers the various dimensions of literature, language, science and arts in Hindi and English language. The seriousness and originality of the articles included in this issue have been taken care of. The editorial team is sure that this issue will also be found useful by the readers who have encouraged us immensely by supporting us all the time notwithstanding COVID pandemic.
