Our hearts are filled with gratitude and happiness in releasing the Third issue (2022) of the quarterly published multidisciplinary Journal, Hans Shodh Sudha (HSS). Since its inception, we have aspired to ensure a constantly high standard of writings/articles that are published in our journal, so that the principles on which it was launched are fulfilled earnestly. In encouraging the aptitude for research and innovation which is fundamental in order for a society and the education system as a whole to progress, our journal Hans Shodh Sudha(HSS) plays an integral role. Research in varied fields of arts, societal issues, and science is encouraged by way of publishing these well-researched articles in this multidisciplinary journal. We have been successful in our mission which is based on the quality of articles that are contributed by writers all over the country. The editorial board carries out an honest analysis of all the articles that are submitted for publication in order to ward off plagiarism if any. The current issue encompasses numerous scopes of literature, language, science, and arts in both Hindi and English languages. The editorial team is certain that the current issue will also be found profoundly beneficial in widening the horizon of its readers and motivating them further toward research.
