

Editorial

It is a matter of great pride and achievement that we have been able to successfully release the ten editions of Hans Shodh Sudha. This time we are all set to release third issue of third volume. Professor (Dr.) Rama is the main guiding force behind the inception of this journal. She herself closely monitors and ensures the quality of articles being published. This journal is multidisciplinary and covers the contemporary research in the area of arts, science and commerce. Time to time it would be our endeavour to release the special issues on the subjects of National importance and thrust. We had successfully been able to release a special issue on National Education Policy. A rigorous peer-reviewed process along with a thorough plagiarism check is done to maintain the quality of the articles published. Maintaining the quality standards of the articles, we have also been able to obtain the ISSN number of the journal. The bilingual nature of the journal is of special interest as it gives opportunity to plethora of serious researchers as a contributor and also as a reader.

We are grateful to all our readers and contributors including our authors and our esteemed reviewers for constantly encouraging us to produce quality articles. We are looking forward to your support in future as well as we are on the path of touching our next milestone of registering the Hans Shodh Sudha in UGC care list.
